Weapons Maintenance Party

Air Explosives and Air Ordnance

The reduction in armament in CENTAUR, since she was first commissioned, has done little to curb the enthusiasm of the gunnery world. During the Far East leg of the Commission, the gun crews were exercised regularly and a large amount of "break-up" shot was fired at our own aircraft, or any other that happened to be passing. While patrolling off Indonesia, functioning firings were carried out nightly.

At Dar-es-Salaam an enormous amount of work was put in by the gunners, weapons maintenance and air explosives parties; sorting and humping ammunition; servicing newly issued small arms, and recognition came when the gunner's yeoman, A. B. Harris, won a commendation from the Commander-in-Chief, Middle East.

One set of well-used armament is the saluting guns.

These guns, of 1897 vintage, ably manned by the air explosive party are still going strong and have fired a total of 335 rounds this Commission. About one-third of these were expended during the visit to Istanbul.

The weapons maintenance party football stand proved to be a great success amongst the children of Madras, Singapore, Hong Kong, Naples and Istanbul, and the number of heads that have been knocked off Pixie and Dixie have proved the football potential of these children.

The Commission has been an enjoyable one in many ways and we hope that many of the younger ratings will have benefited from their training in CENTAUR and can all be proud of having served in a most efficient and happy ship to which the gunnery parties have contributed no mean part.
