OPERATION

OPERATION BURLAP

November and December 1970 saw INTREPID in the world news, due to her relief efforts in the East Pakistan cyclone disaster.

Anchored in the Bay of Bengal she was constantly sending food, clothing, and medical supplies from HMS TRIUMPH and herself to locations ashore, where they were distributed to isolated islands in the Ganges Delta by her LCVP's and LCM's. In addition to the large number of assault boats and helicopters that were taken on by us for the operation,

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

As a comparative newcomer to INTREPID I would like to thank all of you for the cheerful support you have given me while I have been finding out what goes on in big ships! I have enjoyed what little I had of this commission, and with what those of us who are staying have learned from you, I hope we can make the next commission as successful.

Good Luck.

Andrew Murray
